BROADWAY THEATER. Our New Minister.

For seven years Our New Minister has provided amusement for countless thousands of people from Maine to California.

California.

Joseph Conyers, who created the part of the constable at its initial performance in New York, and who has contributed largely to its phenomenal success in all parts of the country, still retains his original role in the comedy that comes to the Broadway theater on Friday, March 25, matinee and night.

The comedy is irresistible, forceful and natural. Each type is clearly depicted and appeals to everyone's idea of humor. The "suspicious" constable. Some real gossip that delights every woman, a boy who distributes current slang in an original way, several types that are real, and a carload of special scenery and effects marks the production, and with many of the original faces in the cast makes this one of the strongest organizations on the road.

THE AUDITORIUM.

Mme, Anita Dlaz's Monks will remain at this popular playhouse for the remainder of the week, but the three other acts will be replaced by the same number of new ones which promise to outde any combination of vaudeville turns yet seen here.

The Grotesque Randolphs, otherwise known as The Chink and the Lady, will present an aerial act full of fun and daring stunts. This act has met with much success in all of the larger cities it has played and it is only because of an open date that the Auditorium management was able to secure this high trapeze novelty.

The Girl in Trousers, Miss Winnie D. Crawford, makes a stunning appearance in male attire, while her voice and masculine movements are perfection itself to those she imitates.

Blockson & Burns, blackface comedians of the first rank, will present a burlesque on a strong man's act in which, by the aid of mechanical devices, they do some would-be marvelous stunts which will create the biggest laughs yet heard within the walls of the Auditorium.

Marion Bradley will sing a catchy illustrated number and the motion plctures will be new and interesting.

BREED THEATER. The President's , Special, Thrilling Railroad Picture.

In the powerful melodramatic picture entitled the President's Special and selected for the feature picture for the Breed theater for the balance of the week the public will find a most novel and thrilling story. The telegraph operator's obligations to remain on duty many hours without sleep, owing to the night operator's illness, has made him unnaturally drowsy, and when the message comes for him to sidetrack the passenger train No. 9 and give the president's special the right of way he is laboring to keep awake, and soon, despite his efforts, his head has fallen on his arm and he is unconscious. He is awakened by the train No. 9 passing the station and knows it is too late to save the lives that are bound to be lost in the wreck. that are bound to be lost in the wreck, his supper and heard him read the message, knows something is wrong, and, dashing out of the door, halls an auto and entering it commands the driver to cut cross country, and for a long time the train and auto can be seen in a wild race, but the auto reaches a bend in the road and the train is seen approaching and the wife jumps out and grasping her red shawl flags the train.

A fascinating Blograph comedy is flags the train.

A fascinating Blograph comedy is also on the bill and it is one of those of the irresistible order and there is a laugh for every minute.

Charles Ray will sing the beautiful concert song, which is accompanied by exquisite slides, entitled The Moonlight, the Rose and You.

Phoenix Theater, Danielson,

The story depicted on the film "The Investor's Fortune," which we will show tonight, is one wherein a young gentus while awaiting a return on his genius while awaiting a return on his invention faces starvation with his little family. In desperation he leaves the baby at the minister's home, that it at least may be spared the fate of its father and mother. Later the minister's house is entered by a burglar, who has lost his only child. The sight of the baby induces him to take it home to his wife, who is mourning beside an empty cradle. The outcome of the plot is novel and unexpected, and is completed with all the characters made happier and better for the incidents through which the picture causes them to pass. The other reels to be shown tonight are all new, and every one of them will excite some special emotion.

FATHER AND DAUGHTER

Married the Same Day in Meriden-Records Reveal Interesting Facts.

The records kept by Town Clerk Herman Hess, on Monday revealed an interesting matrimonial incident in the form of a double wedding in which a father and his daughter were participants. The couple were Maurice W. Spencer and Eva Bownes and Thomas W. Wright and Agnes Hollister, all of Easthampton Mass. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Willis A. Moore of St. Paul's Universalist church, says the Meriden Journal. the Meriden Journal.

the Meriden Journal.

Mr. Spencer and his bride are about fifty years old and she also had been married before. Mrs. Hollister had been freed by the courts from a former matrimonial union, but she is not yet twenty-one years old and had to have her father's consent to her marriage to Wright, who is a few years her senior.

The couples went first to the parsonage of the First Methodist Episcopal church Saturday afternoon, but Rev. W. H. Kidd would not marry the younger couple because of the divorce.

Mr. Spencer and his daughter are former residents of Meriden and that is the reason they came there for the double wedding.

Bernhardt's Salary.

Mme, Sarah Bernhardt, when asked why she agreed to appear on the stage of a London variety theater, said that it took three months to make up her mind and she consented only after she felt certain the Collseum was worthy of her art, and of this she could have no further doubt after Miss Ellen Terry had signed to appear on the same stage. Bernhardt's engagement is for two months, beginning Sept. 19. Twenty thousand dollars a month—same salary as Paulhan. Her acts are only a half hour.

Not a star would you clutch of all you

You could only gather a leaf.

But when you had tost your greedy grief.
Content to see from afar.
You would find in your hand a withereing leaf.
In your heart a shining star.

BETWEEN HAY AND GRASS.

Oh, what can I get for breakfast?

As a change from dinner and tea.

This cooking 'twixt hay-time and clover

Is really perplexing to me.

Tis salt pork and potatoes for morning,
Salt pork and potatoes at noon;
And at eve, as a slight variation,
Potatoes and pork is the tune.

I've the trusty dried apples and flour, But dumplings and dried apple pie Have become to our sight so familian We pass them cround with a sigh. I search through the pile of my cock-

But the horn of dilemma remains, And an appetite raging within me is all that I find for my pains, Still hopeful, I visit the henhouse,
To discover the hens on a strike,
With the cold, for a spell of warm weather,
So their nests are all empty alike,
